

Portfolio information

This guide provides details about the information that needs to be submitted as a portfolio to provide evidence of learning in this module. The bulk of the work included in the portfolio will be work that you have completed throughout the semester, with some opportunity for improvement (as explained later in the guide). In support of your evidence of learning, you will also need to include some reflections, which will be done at the end of the semester, when you compile your portfolio. Throughout the semester you will receive Academic Progress emails indicating your academic progress. The final Academic Progress email (once the last assignment has been assessed) will have important information relating to the content of the portfolio.

Portfolio format

The layout and content of the portfolio is explained here. At a minimum, the portfolio needs to adhere to the layout given and contain the content as specified.

Tip for compiling the portfolio:

Export the assignment pdf as images (so for each submission that should be added to the portfolio, you choose the Export pdf option, and then select Image as export option). Choose the image type (e.g. jpg) to work with. Then add the images to the word doc. At the end, you save the entire pdf as your portfolio.

Another potential alternative is to use the Snipping Tool.

Please note that it is your responsibility to ensure you understand all the requirements before submitting work. If you are unsure about anything related to the portfolio, please ask for clarification.

Layout / presentation

- Cover page, with
 - module code,
 - your full names,
 - your student number, and
 - no page numbers, headers or footers.
- Table of Contents (auto-generated, not manually added), with
 - clearly indicated separate sections (see the numbered sections under Content section below),
 - clearly labelled separate submissions (specifically in Sections 2 and 3 under the Content section below), distinguishing between draft and final,
 - no headers, and
 - Roman numeral page number (i, ii, iii, etc.) in the footer.
- Content pages (actual content details available under the Content section below), with
 - page numbers (e.g. 1, 2, 3, etc.) in the footer,
 - your full names and student number as header of your document, and
 - all submissions to be identified, clearly legible, neatly organised and properly presented within the different sections; with sections identified using the headings provided in the Content section below.

Content

A description of the content required for each section is given here. The content should be presented in the order as shown below, and should be included after the Table of Contents page.

1. Rubric

Rubrics used to assess the portfolio should be included here.

- A copy of the tables (Class activities followed by Assignments) taken from the final Academic Progress email (not the entire email) that you will receive once the last assignment has been assessed.
 - In the table containing the marks of your submitted assignments in the final Academic Progress email, indicate if you plan on taking any ONE of the following opportunities (see Assignments below for an explanation of the improvement and first opportunity)
 - improvement and/or
 - first opportunity.
- A copy of the rubric as given in the Portfolio assessment section later in this document.

2. Class Submissions

All class activities of the semester (listed in the Academic Progress email) are to be included here.

- Submit the class submissions in the same order as listed in the final Academic Progress email (including the missed class submissions, if any).
- Make sure you submit the marked class submissions containing your mark and my feedback.
- If you worked in teams, each team member must submit a copy (these will be identical).
- If you did not submit a specific class assignment,
 - include an entry in the table of contents for the missed submission, and
 - clearly indicate that there was no submission in the body of the portfolio.
- There is no resubmission opportunity for a class submission.

3. Assignments

All assignments of the semester (listed in the Academic Progress email) are to be included here.

- Include all assignments in the same order as listed in the final Academic Progress email.
- If you did not submit a specific assignment (for whatever reason),
 - include an entry in the table of contents for the missed submission, and
 - clearly indicate that there was no submission in the body of the portfolio.
 - If you did not submit an assignment, but submitted a medical certificate (following the appropriate processes), you have a first-time submission opportunity (see first-time submission arrangements below).
 - Indicate that medical certificate was submitted; there will be no penalty (i.e. not max of 50%)
 - This will count as your first-time submission opportunity.
- Make sure you include the following for each assignment:
 - The draft version of the assignments, containing my feedback, directly followed by
 - The final version, containing my final feedback and the mark allocated
- If you worked in teams, each team member must include a copy (these will be identical).
- As a further improvement opportunity, you may take ONE of the two options (improve previously submitted; or first-time submission of not previously submitted) given below.
 - You have an opportunity to improve a maximum of one already submitted assignment. This is an individual improvement – thus you will NOT be allowed to improve your mark as a group. The improved assignment is to be submitted as part of your portfolio, and not as a separate assignment on FUNDA. For the improvement opportunity, you need to do the following:

- Indicate the resubmission in the assignment rubric (see Rubric above).
- Submit the draft and final assignments (as required for all assignments – see above).
- Directly after the marked assignment you want to improve, submit your improved assignment.
- Clearly indicate the improvement using text highlighting.
- The improved assignment requires a reflection. If there is no proper reflection (see points below), the improved opportunity will not be assessed and the original mark will be retained.
 - The reflection is added immediately after the improved submission, clearly explaining:
 - What you have learned from redoing the assignment.
 - Why this submission is indeed an improvement on the original submission.
- If you have NOT submitted a specific assignment for whatever reason during the semester (draft or final copy), you have an option to do a first-time submission of maximum one not previously submitted final version.
 - Indicate first-time submission in the assignment rubric (see Rubric above).
 - A first-time submission is different from the improvement opportunity (discussed above).
 - This submission must be an individual submission – no group submissions allowed.
 - If you have submitted a draft but not a final version, you may submit a final version in the portfolio (where the original final version would have been), which will count as a first-time submission.
 - No reflection is needed for a first-time submission.
 - The maximum mark for this first-time submission in the portfolio is 50%.
 - If you did not submit an assignment (draft or final version) due to medical reasons (followed due processes and submitted valid medical certificate), you may do a final submission (this is then your one first-time submission opportunity)
 - include an entry in the table of contents for the missed submission,
 - clearly indicate reason for no submission (either draft or final) in the body of the portfolio,
 - do a first-time submission in the Portfolio, and
 - this submission does not have a maximum mark restriction.

4. Reflection

In this section you need to reflect on your learning in this module. This section must be completed at the end of the semester, when you compile your portfolio.

Reflection is a process in which one engages in serious thought or consideration about something; it is a mental process where you contemplate on certain things. It should thus be clear that a reflection should be a narrative; it cannot be a list of bullet points. In this case, the reflection will be about our module and the processes through which you engaged with the module material. So in this section you need to reflect on your learning in this module. At a minimum, reflect on all of the following:

- What you consider to be the most valuable concept / topic that you have learnt in this module and why you consider it as the most valuable.
- Aspects of the module (content / delivery) you would describe as being done well.
- Aspects of the module (content / delivery) you would describe as needing some improvement. Please provide improvement examples in the form of advice / ideas.
- At least one life lesson you can take away at the end of this module.

Portfolio assessment

The portfolio assessment will involve assessment of two components. The first component is the class submissions and assignments for which you would, for the most part, already have received feedback and marks by the time you submit your portfolio. Changes to these marks will only be made in the following cases, and only if clearly indicated as per instructions given: improvement opportunity resubmissions or first-time submissions of assignments that were not submitted by the deadlines throughout the semester.

The second component is the Overview Component, indicated in the following rubric. To achieve a rating of 3 in the different categories, you need to exceed the expectations, meaning you will need to go the extra mile – meeting the requirements (e.g. including everything as expected), will be rated as a 2.

Overview Component	Does the criterion meet the expectations?								Score
	0	No	1	Partially	2	Yes	3	Exceeds
1. Submitted artefacts	Required sections or artefacts not included		Some sections / artefacts not or not appropriately included		All sections and all artefacts included		All sections and all artefacts appropriately included and documented
2. Evidence of learning	Little or no evidence of learning		Some evidence of learning, but not sufficient		Adequate evidence of learning		Clear evidence of learning
3. Evidence of reflection	Little or no evidence of reflection		Some evidence of reflection, but not sufficient		Adequate evidence of reflection		Clear evidence of reflection
4. Presentation	Instructions not followed; many errors		Most instructions followed		Adequately organised; instructions followed		Well organised, well structured, all instructions followed

The portfolio weightings and calculations are shown below.

Portfolio component			Weighting
Contents: Weighted average of Class submissions and Assignments			60%
Class submissions contribute 30% and assignments contribute 70%
Overview (see rubric above):			40%
To pass this component (i.e. get 50% for the Overview component), a minimum score of 8 out of 12 should be achieved, with at least a score of 1 in each of the assessment ratings. Marks are allocated as follows:	Score	Mark (%)
	0	0
	3	35
	6	40
	7	45
	8	50
	9	65
	10	75
	11	85
	12	100
Portfolio total			100%

Portfolio Submission

The portfolio should be saved as a pdf, using your student number as filename.

Portfolios should be submitted on FUNDA, in the appropriate submission folder by the deadline indicated in the Schedule in the Module Guide. For the Portfolio, there is no draft submission.
